William Desmond in Western Role for One Day, Beginning Saturday, August 9th

The MAMMOTH THEATRE is fortunate in being able to present the versatile Triangle star, William Desmond, in "Deuce Duncan" on Saturday night.

"Deuce Duncan" offers Mr. Desmond a role of unusual interest. He portrays the character of a dare-devil cowpuncher who fears neither God, man nor devil. The little bar-maid of the "Half Acre of Hell" saloon wins his heart and he turns his guns to good purposes.

A unique element in this picture is that in which the cowpunchers of the UR ranch grease their cattle in order to locate rustlers. Desmond wades through some terrific battles in this thriller.

In the cast supporting him are Luella Maxim, Ed Brady, George Field, William Ellingford and Joe Singleton.

"Outcast of Poker Flat"

Matinee Wednesday at 2:00 p. m.

A rare combination of modern art and bygone artistry will participate in the first showing in this city of "The Outcasts of Poker Flat" at the MAMMOTH THEATRE, Wednesday. True they will participate in spirit and in shadow only, but a person need not be present in the flesh to perform a certain function or execute a wonderful bit of art. This combination includes the master work of the beloved author, Bret Harte, whose "Outcasts of Poker Flat" in book form has shone brilliantly throughout these many years and now that it has been filmed will live forever. Added to this is the artistry of the famous star, Harry Carey, who depicts the role of John Oakhurst, the honest gambler in the story.

Bret Harte used to say "the critics put a heap of things in my stories that I never put there." From all reports the picturization of "Outcasts of Poker Flat" required additional scenes and atmosphere that, to be sure, Harte "never put there," but if the great author were alive today the producers feel certain that he would be highly elated over the liberties taken with his brain child by scenario writer H. Tipton, Steck and director Jack Ford.

As seen on the screen of the MAMMOTH THEATRE "The Outcasts of Poker Flat" is said to be a masterpiece. Harry Carey, fine, young man of the real masculine type that he is, could hardly want for a better part than that of John Oakhurst and he doubtless has taken advantage of this superior role. In the supporting cast are Cullen Landis, Gloria Hope, Joel Harris, Victor Potel, J. Farrell McDonald, J. Webster Dill, Charles Hill Mailes, Virginia Chester and Louise Lester.

Wonderful Production.

One Day Only

SHORT SYNOPSIS. WHEN WOMAN STRIKES.

"Quick Benton (Ben Wilson) is the best liked man in the country West of the Rockies. He is the stage driver and has as one of his passengers on his weekly trip over the range, Lassie Doone (Neva Gerber) whose father Silas Doone (Robert Brower) is falling in years.

Arriving at Lassie's destination "Quick" defends her against the advances of "Shady" (George Nichols) a notorious gambler and "gentleman." "Quick" and Shady clash. Lassie's brother is accused of murder. Lassie meeting with "Quick" results in their marriage and shortly thereafter he is made sheriff of the county. Lassie's brother comes to her for protection. "Quick" knows nothing of the relationship, and suspects that his wife is not true to him.

Marquita (Rosemary Theby), a Spanish girl, is a friend of "Shady." She knows the secret of the murder for which Lassie's brother is charged. "Shady's" unfaithfulness to Marquita causes her to turn against him and she confesses all, after killing "Shady" in a jealous rage. The mystery is solved, Lassie's brother is declared innocent of the charge and happiness reigns in the Benton family.

This is the story of "When a Woman Strikes" told briefly. It will be seen on the screen of the MAMMOTH THEATRE. The greatest Western melodrama of them all.
